

Protective grate

A protective grate is installed on an outdoor unit and performs a design function when you wish to ensure that the outdoor unit blends with the façade of a house.

A protective grate is installed on an outdoor unit and performs a design function when you wish to ensure that the outdoor unit blends with the façade of a house. This grate lets the air through perfectly, therefore, the warranty conditions applicable to the appliance do not change. The grate is made of wood and can be painted in various colours.
